

CHAMPION/DATA/ISSUE 4

Hi and welcome to the fourth edition of the Fantasy Freako's rave for 2011. Contrary to what many of us thought, scores last week weren't as affected as we thought they would be with the multi team byes, with the winner for the round scoring 2,371 points.

With a Thursday night game kicking off the round this week, we have a partial lockout in place which means that only Brisbane and St Kilda players will be locked in on Thursday night. The round goes into complete lockout mode at the commencement of the Port Adelaide vs Gold Coast game on Saturday at 3.10 pm. Also, due to the complexities of Round 5, next week's rave will go out on Thursday instead of the usual Wednesday.

PLAYER'S ON THE UP

Only one month into the new season and already we have seen a rapid improvement in a number of players. Hawthorn's Liam Shiels heads the below list, improving his average from 53 points per game in 2010 to 96 points per match this season, a massive rise of 43 points. Collingwood's Chris Dawes is next best, up by 37 points per game on last season, courtesy of his average of 19 disposals and three goals per match. The Dockers Nathan Fyfe has come from nowhere to average 104 points per game, up by 35 on his previous year's output – the fourth-biggest rise in the league.

Looking at the other end of the scale, Adelaide's Graham Johncock has had the biggest slide of any player that has not been involved in a substitute or been injured, slumping by 37 points.

Only player's that played at least five games last year and at least three in 2011 have been included in the below analysis.

CASH COW HEAVEN

Making money from our cash cows is the name of this game and the below players will make plenty for us in the coming weeks. Tom Liberatore stands to have the biggest price rise this round with an approximate breakeven score of -62. Michael Coad is next best with a breakeven of -49, but he's now out for up to three months with his hamstring injury, so he won't be making us money any time soon. Jayden Pitt has been the surprise packet this season (currently in 5% of teams), averaging 70 points per match compared to popular pick Brandon Matera who's averaging 17 fewer points per game and is in 36% of teams.

The one word of advice I have is to hold onto your cash cows for as long as you can and when their price peaks, take the money and run! And how do we know when their price has peaked? Once a player's breakeven score hits an unrealistic mark is generally a sign that their price has reached its maximum.

ADELAIDE CROWS

FREAKO SAYS:

Scott Thompson is the best player behind Dane Swan this season averaging 124 points per match. His last two games have been unbelievable, returning scores of 152 and 141 points respectively. He's a great trade up target considering he's averaged at least 95 points in each season since 2007.

FREMANTLE

FREAKO SAYS:

The omission of Nick Lower last week caught many of us by surprise. However with Nick Suban going down with a broken leg, I expect him to come straight back into the side this week. The Dockers play on Monday though so make sure you have an emergency if you plan on starting him, just in case he misses the cut.

NORTH MELBOURNE

FREAKO SAYS:

If you selected Drew Petrie for his dual position status this season, then you've wasted your time. Zac Smith has outscored him as a ruckman and the rookies in the forward line have also performed admirably. Look at cashing in on him in the next few weeks.

PORT ADELAIDE

FREAKO SAYS:

My eyes couldn't believe it last week when I saw that Kane Cornes was dropped after playing 174 consecutive games. That suggests that he's no longer an automatic selection, which questions his long term viability. If he's not named this week, I would strongly look at moving him on.

WESTERN BULLDOGS

FREAKO SAYS:

AFL DREAM TEAM AVERAGE

With a pair of 114's in his past two games at Patersons Stadium, Matthew Boyd looks like a safe bet as captain this week.

1612
(Ranked 5th)
