ROUND 5

2011

CHAMPION/DATA/ISSUE 5

Hi and welcome to the fifth edition of the Fantasy Freako's rave for 2011. With a short turnaround before Round 6, make the most of the time you have to plan your trades carefully. It's back to head-to-head games from Round 7 though, so take note of that before you trade.

Enjoy the read this week's read and best of luck for the upcoming round.

ON THE KRAK HEAP

Many coaches would have tasted their first donut for the year last week and it was all due to the omission of Andrew Krakouer. The writing was on the wall as soon as Brad Dick was selected in the side, and his demotion was no surprise really considering his recent poor form.

After a startling NAB Cup campaign, he provided us with great hope and taking into account his discounted price and dual position status, he was set to play a key role in many teams. He took his pre-season form into Round 1 and returned 96 points against Port Adelaide, but it was downhill from there, scoring 48, 48 and 40 points from his next three games. Having a price increase of only $31,500, we must this week decide what to do with him.

Ultimately there are only three options. You can hold onto him and hope that he comes good again and increases further in value. You can trade him down to a rookie, or alternatively you can find some cash (if you don't have it already) and trade him up to a premium midfielder/forward. Taking into account that Collingwood has a bye in Round 7, the third option would be the most advantageous if you ask me. Given that money is no issue, to the right I have included the best trade up targets within the dual position range. Take note that players in red have a bye this round.

CLASH OF THE TITANS

The Collingwood vs Western Bulldogs game this week promises to be a belter! We will see the two best Dream Teamers of the modern era go head-to-head, with Dane Swan and Matthew Boyd set to clash. Boyd has regularly been matched up against Swan in recent times, but he hasn't been able to quell his influence, with the Magpie collecting 39, 35 and 31 disposals from his past three outings (including the 2010 qualifying final). Boyd himself hasn't taken a backwards step, gathering 29, 36 and 38 disposals from these matches.

It promises to be a great dual, and if you have both players' in your team you will be faced with a tough choice when deciding your captain. To assist you with this, to the right I have included how they have fared so far this season.

ADELAIDE CROWS

FREAKO SAYS:

Not one Adelaide player cracked the ton last week against Carlton. It's no surprise considering they only had 337 disposals for the match – its lowest tally for the year.

If you were thinking of cashing in on Dyson Heppell anytime soon, then I would think again. He could very well end up being a keeper if he maintains his good form, especially with the added bonus of his dual position status. Greg Broughton being a late withdrawal would have hurt a lot of teams this week. No time line has been given on his back injury, which gives us plenty to think about before the Dockers next game in Round 7.

WEST COAST EAGLES

FREAKO SAYS:

With another partial lockout on the horizon, the captain's loophole will be once again in play this week. The most obvious choice from West Coast is Cox, considering he's averaged 100 points per game from his past three matches against Melbourne.

WESTERN BULLDOGS

FREAKO SAYS:

The debut of Mitch Wallis last week could not have come at a better time. He started as a sub and only got 29 minutes game time, but I'm sure he'll get more of a run against the Magpies this week, given he keeps his place in the side. What a great trade down target for your midfield.
