

CHAMPION/DATA/ISSUE 6

Hi and welcome to the sixth edition of the Fantasy Freako's rave for 2011. With the multi round byes behind us for now, we can hopefully get our season back on track after three challenging rounds. If you're looking to trade, do so wisely, but make sure you don't offload your cash cows before they fully mature in price. Take note of the breakevens and base your trading around those numbers.

Enjoy the read and good luck to everyone for the upcoming round.

ROUND 7 CAPTAINS

With no Dane Swan or Scott Pendlebury this week due to the Magpies having the bye, picking a captain will require some thought. If we look at the best performers over the past month, there's a surprise leader of the pack, with the Lions' Jack Redden the No.1 ranked player in the league, averaging 129 points per game. His last three games have been unbelievable, scoring 119, (bye in Round 4), 138 and 131 points. Team mate Tom Rockliff isn't too far behind and with Brisbane playing its first Queensland derby against Gold Coast this week, picking either of them as skipper could be handsomely rewarding.

If you wanted to look elsewhere, then you can't go past the in-form Cats. They have an impeccable record at their spiritual home, winning their past 24 matches at Skilled Stadium, and the man at the forefront has been Jimmy Bartel, averaging 112 points per match – ranked No.1 at the club. His record against this week's opponents North Melbourne also makes for interesting reading, scoring 94, 139 and 145 points from his past three matches against them at the venue.

RIEWOLDT ON THE SLIDE

The form of St Kilda and more importantly for us, the form of Nick Riewoldt is a major concern. He looks a shadow of his former self this season, averaging 78 points per match which is his worst start to any year since 2007. He was goalless last week against Adelaide and could only manage 43 points – clearly his worst result for the year. Admittedly he was knocked out and failed to play any part in the final quarter, but the signs were worrying nonetheless. He has failed to crack the ton in any game also, which is the first time he hasn't done so in the first six rounds since 2007 – a year he went on to average 107 points per match from Round 7 onwards – ranked third in the competition. Hopefully he can have a similar turnaround in 2011.

He and the Saints need to lift this week and they could very well do so against Carlton, a team he has averaged 107 points per match against since 2007 – ranked No.1 at the club. He missed last year's Round 7 clash through injury, but scored 122 and 121 points from his previous two games against the Blues.

ADELAIDE CROWS

FREAKO SAYS:

Although we initially thought that Otten was dropped last week, it has since been revealed he suffered an injury at training to his reconstructed knee. He has been cleared of any structural damage, but will miss a few games as he rehabilitates.

MELBOURNE

FREAKO SAYS:

Is Brad Green finished as a Dream Teamer? His numbers suggest that he's done and dusted. If we compared him to Brad Johnson from last season, Johnno suffered a 27 point drop from his previous year (2009-2010), while Green's numbers have dropped by 29 points per match from last season.

FREAKO SAYS:

Cameron Richardson has only enjoyed a modest price rise, so we may have no choice but to hold onto him for now. He was among the best at VFL level last week, but I doubt that he'll earn a recall so soon.

FREAKO SAYS:

Unfortunately in fantasy football we have very little patience with players, which is why we may have been a little premature in putting a line through Foley. After his disastrous start to the year, he's smashed out 108 and 123 points over the past two weeks which included racking up 40 disposals last round.

SYDNEY SWANS

FREAKO SAYS:

It's bad news for coaches with Kieren Jack. He injured his ankle against the Blues and will now miss up to six weeks. A straight swap for team mate Jude Bolton could be the way to go, considering he's played 136 consecutive games and is averaging a healthy 97 points per outing.

WESTERN BULLDOGS

FREAKO SAYS:

It was too good to be true. Shaun Higgins was fit and healthy and averaging a career-high 100 points per match, but as expected, his body has failed him yet again. The Dogs are unlikely to risk him again this week, which means he misses another match.
