

FANTASY FREAKO'S

ROUND 12

2011

CHAMPION/DATA/ISSUE 12

Hi and welcome to the twelfth edition of the Fantasy Freako's rave for 2011. We face a number of hurdles this round, none bigger than finding midfielders that are actually playing. With Joel Selwood, Dane Swan, Scott Pendlebury, Brent Stanton, David Mundy and Leigh Montagna all missing or potentially unavailable due to injury – it will be tough going. In addition to this, we must also look at the plight of our cash cows, who have seemingly hit the wall.

Enjoy this week's read and best of luck for the upcoming round.

HARD CALLS MUST BE MADE

As I've mentioned in previous raves, we must continually assess the performance of our cash cows, making sure that we don't hold onto them too long, or alternatively get rid of them too early. Below I have included a list of the most popular selections this year and where they sit at the minute, including their price change for Round 12 and their approximate breakevens for Round 13. This will hopefully assist you in making calls on them this week.

If we take a closer look at the numbers, it tells us that Dyson Heppell has peaked, suffering his second price drop for the year last round, even though it was a small one at that. He's still a valuable commodity though, with his dual position status giving us flexibility to move other player's around. He may not be an automatic starter anymore, but he's still good enough to have in your team.

Jack Darling is another player that has been a solid choice this season, but in the last three weeks his numbers have dried up, averaging 52 points per match – which included a season-low 27 last round. It's highly unlikely that he will reach his breakeven score this week, which suggests that now the perfect time to trade him out, preferably for a premium forward if you have the funds. Other players that should be looked at closely this week include Tom Liberatore, David Swallow and Tom Lynch – all players that have peaked in price.

TACKLES WORTH THEIR WEIGHT IN GOLD

Having a player that finds plenty of the ball is one thing, but having one that's a relentless tackler is an added bonus. As we all know, tackles in DT are like gold, with their overall worth the next best behind a goal. If we look at the top-10 scorers this season, Matthew Boyd leads the way with 1,288 points, having applied 61 tackles across the year, which makes up 19% of his overall score – the sixth-highest percentage of that group.

If we look at the best tackler among these players, it's Brisbane's Jack Redden with 85, which is also ranked equal-third in the competition overall. His tackles make up 29% of his total score this season which is clearly the most of any player, with Chris Judd next best, and Scott Thompson rounding out the top three. As expected, Dean Cox has the lowest percentage being a ruckman, but he makes up for this with his hitouts, where he's averaging a career-high 31 per match.

For those that held onto Andy Otten, you would have been rewarded with 83 points last week and a decent price rise of $22,500. He still has one more price rise in him yet, so hold on for now.

Andrew Krakouer's stocks have now risen in light of the long-term injury to fellow goalsneak Brad Dick. With Leon Davis continuing his role in defence, this will ensure that Krakouer continues to get games. He could be a handy player to hold onto for the second half of the season.

HAWTHORN

FREAKO SAYS:

It was a sorry sight for both Hawthorn and Jarryd Roughead last week as the big man went down with an achillies injury. He will now miss the remainder of the year, which means you have to find a replacement for him. Look at team mates Lance Franklin or Cyril Rioli if you haven't got either of those two.

RICHMOND

FREAKO SAYS:

The Jack Riewoldt rollercoaster continued last week, scoring 55 points for the third time this season. He isn't a player you should be looking to trade up to, with his consistency and poor discipline two areas of his game that continually let him down.

After averaging 88 points per match in 2009-10, Gilbert's scores have slumped this year, averaging 19 fewer points per game. He looked very ordinary last week as he posted his lowest score for the year, which raises doubts about his worth this season.

Kieren Jack was the starting sub last week in his first game back from injury, but as soon as he came on he had an immediate impact, scoring 50 points from only 38 minutes game time. His price has taken a decent hit this week, which makes him an attractive trade up target for your midfield.
