

FANTASY FREAKO'S

ROUND 15

2011

CHAMPION/DATA/ISSUE 15

Hi and welcome to the 15th edition of the Fantasy Freako's rave for 2011. It was a round of big scores last week, with some massive numbers accumulated and none better than Gazza's 175 points. I'll take a close look at him in my weekly focus, as well as give you some valuable insights as we head into the penultimate multi bye round for the year.

Enjoy this week's and best of luck to everyone for the upcoming round.

IS GAZZA BETTER AS A SUN?

Heading into this season, the biggest unknown was how the game's best player in Gary Ablett would fare at the newly formed Gold Coast Suns. With virtually no pre-season under his belt and a bye in Round 1 to contend with, it was enough to put us off picking him in our starting squad. He started the year as we expected him to, returning modest scores for a player of his standards, but come Round 8 against Adelaide the tide had turned. He collected 156 points that week and he hasn't looked back, averaging 136 points per game since that round – ranked No.1 in the league.

He came out and played the game of his life last week against Fremantle, smashing out 175 points which included a career-high 14 tackles. He comes up against Sydney this round and he's every chance to emulate that performance considering two of his top six greatest scores have come against the Swans. If you have him in your team like I do, I would be handing him the captain's arm band this week.

Below are Ablett's greatest performances of his career, with those highlighted in red those from this season as a Gold Coast player.

GAMES PLAYED THIS YEAR

Geelong last round became the first team in the competition not to have a player represent them in every match this season. Joel Corey and Travis Varcoe were the only two players' that had played in every game up until Round 14, but as we know they both missed last week. If we look at the other side of the spectrum, West Coast has had 12 players front up every week, which is a remarkable effort for a team coming off a wooden spoon.

From a DT point of view, the debutant column is the one which is of the greatest interest for us, because as we know the more youngsters that get a run, the greater the pool is for bargain basement players at the start of the year or alternatively trade down targets during the season proper. Gold Coast head the list for bleeding first year player's, but that was always going to be the case with a new club. Fellow Queenslander's Brisbane is next best with eight, while the Western Bulldogs round out the top three with nine debutants.

At the other end of the scale, Collingwood has only had two debutants this year, which highlights the stability within the side, as should be expected of a reigning premiership outfit. It was also reluctant to hand youngsters games last season, giving only one player its debut – once again the fewest of any side.

ADELAIDE CROWS

FREAKO SAYS:

If you were planning on trading down to Ian Callinan this week, then you will have to reconsider. Firstly the Crows have a bye and secondly he injured his hamstring last round against the Swans and now faces several weeks on the sidelines. Lucky for us that Daniel Talia debuted last week, which gives us that escape clause next week.

ESSENDON

FREAKO SAYS:

Many coaches pulled the trigger last week and dumped Dyson Heppell, but he got one back on us with a game-high 30 disposals. I know the Bombers have a bye in Round 24, but he's still good enough to keep as a bench cover.

HAWTHORN

FREAKO SAYS:

Luke Hodge continued his love affair with Collingwood last week, racking up a career-high 40 disposals, which eclipsed his previous best effort of 39 which came against Brisbane in Round 16 last season. Coincidentally, these two sides meet again in the same round and at the same venue yet again in 2011.

FREAKO SAYS:

I know his form hasn't been great, but this may be the week to bring in Jack Riewoldt. With an average of 109 points from his past three games against Essendon and a good run home to come, he looms as a decent seventh forward option.

WESTERN BULLDOGS

FREAKO SAYS:

Adam Cooney looks to be back in town. With scores of 114 and 110 from his past two games, and at his price he's as cheap as they come. Strongly consider him.
