

CHAMPION/DATA/ISSUE 21

Hi and welcome to the 21st edition of the Fantasy Freako's rave for 2011. Hopefully you're still alive after week one of the finals, but if you were bundled out, then there's always next season to look forward to. For those still alive, it all starts again this week, unless you've earned yourself a preliminary final berth that is. If you have the luxury of a week off, then save your trades for next week's big one.

Enjoy this week's rave and best of luck to all coaches this round.

COMING HOME WITH A WET SAIL

With only three rounds to go, there will be plenty coaches making their final trades for the year this week. Subsequently, taking a look at how some players finished off last season could be useful, and for the purpose of this analysis, players from Geelong, Carlton and Essendon have been excluded, as they are yet to complete its final bye for the year.

If we look at the best performers across the last three rounds last season, Gary Ablett and Brendon Goddard couldn't be separated, averaging 122 points per match apiece. Of the two, Ablett is the one I would be jumping on, as he's more likely to finish the year off stronger. He has home games to come against Adelaide and Hawthorn, with a trip to face Melbourne at the MCG also on the cards, which means there are some big scores on the horizon.

Dane Swan and Sam Mitchell also finished last season off on a high, averaging 117 and 116 points per match respectively. Swan finishes the year with games against Brisbane, Fremantle and a tough Round 24 match against Geelong. Mitchell on the other hand wraps up his season with games against Carlton, the Western Bulldogs and Gold Coast. I'm expecting him to post some big numbers from these games.

Looking at key forward options, Travis Cloke finished last year off strongest, averaging an impressive 113 points per match. He should score well against the Lions this week and the Dockers the following round, however the Cats in Round 24 could prove to be a major hurdle. He's cracked the ton in only one of his seven H&A matches against them, averaging only 69 points per match (not including his 100 plus point score).

ROUND 22 CAPTAINS

Last week the numbers told us that Bryce Gibbs was the best captain option, and he didn't let us down, racking up 139 against Fremantle – the second-best return of my 10 captain tips. Collectively the group averaged 110 points per match amongst them, however, this would have been far greater had Joel Selwood and Paul Chapman pulled their finger out.

Looking ahead the upcoming round, the numbers have identified Daniel Cross, but his current form suggests otherwise. He has dominated against the Power in his last three matches, posting at least 126 points in every outing, however, his recent scores have been well below par, averaging 83 points per game in his past three. If you're the adventurous type, go right ahead and make him skipper, however, if you aren't, then look elsewhere.

The most obvious captain choices this round are Scott Pendlebury and Dane Swan, with both of them safe bets against Brisbane. The last time these two sides met at the MCG was back in Round 18 in 2009, with both players gathering 36 disposals apiece that day. Pendlebury has averaged 128 points per match against the Lions in his past three games, whilst Swan comes in with an average of 109, which includes a poor return of 79 in Round 4 at the Gabba in 2009. I'm going with Swanny this week if that counts for anything.

Gary Ablett is also in the mix this week, especially after his most recent game against Adelaide where he scored a whopping 156 points in Round 8. His two previous games against them though weren't as prominent, returning 81 and 92 points, which included getting heavily tagged by Brent Reilly in Round 16 last season, managing only 19 disposals. His form at Metricon Stadium has been outstanding this season, and if we take out his injury affected 23 points, he averages 114 point per match at the venue. Keep him in mind.

FREAKO SAYS:

If you've been starting Andrew Krakouer in recent weeks, then this is the perfect time to upgrade him, especially if you were playing him in the midfield. His price is currently at a season high and there are plenty of underpriced midfielders going around.

Nick Lower would have cost thousands of coaches a victory last week. His form at Patersons Stadium has been poor all season, but his interstate numbers are impressive. He averages 88 points per match away from home this year, and based on that, I'd give him one more chance this week.

GOLD COAST SUNS

FREAKO SAYS:

I'm not sure why we were all in raptures last week at the possibility of Zac Smith being rested. He scored a season-low 34 points against Brisbane, which was on the back of his 40 point display a week earlier against Geelong. The signs are very worrying.

WEST COAST EAGLES

FREAKO SAYS:

There were a few question marks about the fitness of Dean Cox heading into last round, but thankfully he fronted up and scored 96 points. He has since revealed that he played with a fractured rib, but that won't keep him out this week, as he's already declared himself a certain starter.
