

FANTASY FREAKO'S

ROUND 23

2011

CHAMPION/DATA/ISSUE 23

Hi and welcome to the 23rd and final edition of the Fantasy Freako's rave for 2011. In what promises to be a ripper final round of the year, a lot of team's fortunes will depend on what happens at the selection table on Thursday night, as I'm sure there will be a few surprises among the ins and outs.

Enjoy this week's final rave and good luck to all coaches participating in Grand Finals, as well as the select few that are in the race for the FJ Cruiser. I'm sure you'll have a few sleepless nights heading into the final lockout of the year.

ROUND 24 CAPTAINS

Only one of my captain selections let me down last week, with Stevie J the only player scoring below 80 points after he was well contained by young Swan Nick Smith. Collectively the group averaged 105 points per match between them, but that figure doesn't include Sam Mitchell's donut after he was a late withdrawal against the Western Bulldogs. His no-show was a savage blow for over 50,000 coaches, but thankfully he was only rested and he'll definitely return this week against Gold Coast.

Looking ahead to Grand Final week, there are three clear standouts, with Dane Swan, Gary Ablett and Matthew Boyd all sound selections. As I outlined in the last rave, there's no reason to take the arm band off Swan, who's currently unstoppable, averaging 133 points per match since returning from his Arizona sabbatical in Round 14. His last three games against this week's opponent Geelong have also been exceptional, returning scores of 127, 141 and most recently 115 points in Round 8.

If you're looking for that point of difference, then perhaps Matthew Boyd could get you over the line. He has been a consistent scorer since Round 16, recording at least 100 points in each match since, for an average of 116 per game – ranked eighth in the competition. Also, if we look at the last time he fronted Fremantle he had a day out, racking up a career-high 45 disposals and 162 points in Round 5.

The other option is Gary Ablett, who comes into this match with a subpar 96 points against Melbourne. He returns home to Metricon Stadium this week, a venue he's averaged 119 points per match (doesn't include the 23 injury affected points in Round 16). His recent record against Hawthorn is also impressive, returning a pair of 135's from his past two appearances, with his most recent coming in Round 13 this year. We need to be wary of a possible hard tag though, with Hawthorn likely to use more than one player on him to quell his influence, similar to the tactics it used on Chris Judd a few rounds back.

Considering the importance of this round, I would only look at Swan or Boyd as captain options, despite the potential for the Gold Coast ace to score well.

LEADING SCORERS SINCE ROUND 20

If you currently don't have Dane Swan and are looking at upgrading one of your midfielders, then he is an absolute must! He leads all scorers across the past month with an impressive average of 134 points per game. Not too far behind is Swan's clone in Tom Rockliff, who averages 131 points per match since Round 20, which includes scoring a round-high 151 points last week against West Coast. If we look at his past 10 performances, he has cracked the ton on each occasion, with the only other player in the league to achieve this feat being Swan himself. The similarities between the two players are indeed remarkable.

If you already have Swan and Rockliff, then Sam Mitchell looks to be the next best bet. He'll be refreshed after the week off, and more importantly he comes up against Gold Coast, a team which has given up the most points of any side this year. He racked up 38 disposals when he last came up against them in Round 13, which included scoring 132 points – his second-best effort for the year. The extractor is currently in career-best form averaging 113 points per match – up by 13 points on last season.

Below I have included the best scorers across the past month, however this doesn't include Brent Stanton who ranks eighth among all players in this period, as Essendon has the final round bye.

For those wondering how the Karmichael Hunt experiment faired this season, the AFL convert has averaged a paltry 28 points per match, enjoying a small price rise of $14,000. That's a massive fail in my books.

PORT ADELAIDE

FREAKO SAYS:

Robbie Gray can be best described as a tease. He has only cracked the ton in eight of his 67 career matches, but when he has, he definitely sticks out. He booted a career-high six goals last week against Essendon and belted out 131 points – 11 more points than his previous best effort.

WEST COAST EAGLES

FREAKO SAYS:

After pumping up Andrew Embley last week, he returned the favour by recording his lowest score for the year, managing a dismal seven disposals from 100 minutes game time – his lowest return since Round 22, 2008.
